

Author: Helmut Renner

Website: <http://www.forexheli.com>

Why Managed Funds ?

Self-trading in the currency markets is at best a difficult activity. To be successful a currency trader must follow market movements 24 hours a day, six days a week. Many Forex investors do not have the time, experience or desire to trade with such intensity themselves. Forex Managed Accounts were created for investors with risk capital who do not necessarily want to trade on their own. Generally Forex managed account has the ownership of a private investor and is investments account that is managed by a broker or by a money manager who is hired for doing the same. Managed accounts are personalized investment portfolio that is customized to meet the specific requirements of the account holder. Forex managed accounts are intended for investors, who do not have experience or time to make their own decisions. For managing the accounts of the individuals, these brokers or professional money managers charge a certain amount of fee.

Benefits of a Forex Managed Account

- Trading opportunities in both rising and falling markets.
- Asset diversification from foreign exchange trading.
- Professional forex account management.
- Diversified forex trading discipline using the major currencies only.
- Real-time account management and reporting.
- Liquidity of assets - money can be withdrawn at any time.
- Low initial investment for a managed account starting at $5,000 to $10,000 depending account type

The managed account only holds your positions and allows you to follow a cost-basis for each of the currencies in your account. Based on your long-term goals, risk tolerance and time constraints, you can select an currency professional who suits your trading strategy to actively manage your portfolio.

---

I am a highly experienced Forex full time trader, with over 10 years specializing in Currency Analysis. I develop trading systems, strategies, and computer systems for international business management. I am here to help traders understand the process of successful trading. Want to learn more about how to trade forex for profit online? Claim my popular free e-course, available at: <http://www.forexheli.com>